TERRITORY TRAILS.

The Attempt to Build Texas Cattlemen's Trail from "Down Upon."

Washington, June 11.—The secretary of the Interior has sent the following telegram to W. A. Towers and Thos. A. Lee, the committee for the stock association at Kansas City, Mo.: "I have carefully considered your telegram of the 10th inst. The animal industry law prohibits the driving from one state or territory to another of any live stock, by any person or persons, who are or may be infected with contagious, infectious or communicable disease. The owners whose herds are for sale, shipped in the Indian Territory declare their cattle are not affected. People of Texas, Colorado, Missouri and other states have an equal if not a greater right to drive their stock, not infected with prohibited diseases, through and over the trails of the Indian Territory and the neutral strip, as you have to occupy these lands without your herds from Indian trails. An inspector has been sent to open and keep open the trails for the passage of cattle. If the people who are occupying these lands with their herds refuse to remove their cattle from the trails, measures will be taken to remove them and their herds at once."

The following instructions were also telegraphed to Inspector Armstrong at the Cheyenne and Arapaho agencies in the Indian Territory: "Owners of cattle driving their herds northward through the Indian Territory and the public land strip north of Texas, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Missouri and other states have an equal if not a greater right to drive their stock, not infected with prohibited diseases, through and over the trails of the Indian Territory and the neutral strip, as you have to occupy these lands without your herds from Indian trails.
